

When measuring with stationary rollers the rubber expands equally on both sides (see illustration)

During dynamic measurement the rubber expands asymmetrically as the rollers are in motion